A French wine merchant is offering a rare selection of Domaine de la Romanée-Conti bottles dating from 1942 to 2016, with prices ranging from 2,150 euros for a 1957 La Tâche to 11,995.83 euros for a 1942 La Tâche, according to a sales email sent Tuesday by SoDivin, an old-vintage specialist based in Aigues-Vives, France.

The list includes some of Burgundy’s most sought-after wines, among them La Tâche, Richebourg, Grands Échezeaux, Échezeaux and Romanée-Saint-Vivant under the Marey-Monge label. The merchant said the bottles were in stock and available for same-day shipping before 2 p.m., with next-day delivery offered to some destinations. It also said high-definition photos were available online or on request.

Among the bottles advertised were a 2016 La Tâche at 5,454.17 euros before VAT, a 2005 La Tâche at 6,250 euros, a 1990 La Tâche at 7,454.17 euros and a 1986 Richebourg at 4,050 euros. The company also listed two bottles of 1998 Romanée-Saint-Vivant at 4,041.67 euros each and a single bottle of 1942 La Tâche at nearly 12,000 euros before tax.

SoDivin described itself as a specialist in fine wines and old vintages since 2001 and said the bottles were precisely described and protected with specialized packaging for transport. The email included contact details by email and WhatsApp for buyers seeking more information about the stock list or photographs.

Domaine de la Romanée-Conti is one of the most closely watched names in the wine market, and bottles from its top vineyards often draw attention from collectors because of limited production, strong demand and long aging potential. The merchant’s inventory reflects that market, with multiple vintages from the early 2000s and 1990s alongside older bottles from the 1980s, 1950s and wartime era.
