French fine-wine merchant SoDivin has issued a new stock list focused on magnums, offering large-format bottles from 1962 through 2022 across Bordeaux, Burgundy, the Rhône Valley, Champagne, Languedoc and Provence.

The offer was circulated Tuesday in a client email under the subject line “Magnums selection.” The company said the list covers bottles stored ex cellar and priced without VAT. It also said high-definition photos of each bottle are available online or on request by email or WhatsApp, and that it can ship the same day for orders placed before 2 p.m., with next-day delivery to eligible destinations.

The selection ranges from recent, lower-priced southern French wines to rare older bottles from top estates. At the entry end of the list, SoDivin offered a 2022 Mas Bruguière L’Arbouse Magnum from Pic Saint-Loup for €40.00, with one bottle available, and a 2020 Mas Bruguière La Grenadière Magnum for €58.33, with two bottles in stock. A 2015 Château Fontesteau Magnum from Haut-Médoc was listed at €54.17.

Among newer Rhône and southern French bottles, the company listed a 2021 Chapoutier L’Ermite Blanc Magnum from Hermitage Blanc at €956.67, with two available, and a 2019 Delas La Landonne Magnum from Côte-Rôtie at €281.67, with three in stock. A 2018 Domaine Laurent Tardieu Vieilles Vignes Magnum from Châteauneuf-du-Pape was offered at €104.17, while a 2017 Guigal Brune et Blonde Magnum from Côte-Rôtie was priced at €137.50. The list also included a 2011 Clos des Papes Magnum from Châteauneuf-du-Pape at €179.17, with six bottles available.

Several notable Bordeaux wines appeared in the midrange and upper end of the offer. SoDivin listed a 2017 Carruades de Lafite Magnum from Pauillac at €458.33, with three bottles available, and a 2017 Château La Mondotte Magnum from Saint-Émilion at €291.67. A 2014 Vieux Château Certan Magnum from Pomerol was offered at €398.33. Older Bordeaux references included a 2006 Les Forts de Latour Magnum at €450.00, a 1993 Carruades de Lafite Magnum at €450.00, a 1993 Pavillon Rouge du Château Margaux Magnum at €250.00, and a 1990 Château Meyney Magnum from Saint-Estèphe at €179.17.

The list also featured high-priced Burgundy and Rhône bottles in very limited quantities. A 2017 Domaine Anne Gros Echezeaux Magnum was priced at €1,050.00, with one bottle available. A 2014 Domaine Prieuré Roch Vieilles Vignes Magnum from Nuits-Saint-Georges was listed at €1,295.83, with two in stock. From Burgundy's Côte de Beaune, a 1995 Comtes Lafon Les Santenots du Milieu Magnum from Volnay was offered at €854.17. In the northern Rhône, the company listed a 2010 Auguste Clape Magnum from Cornas at €595.83, a 2010 Pierre Gonon Magnum from Saint-Joseph at €550.00, and a 2006 Jean-Louis Chave Magnum from Hermitage Rouge at €815.00.

Champagne was another major part of the selection. Recent and mid-aged listings included a 2015 Philipponnat Cuvée "1522" Grand Cru Extra Brut Magnum at €195.83, with six bottles available, and a 2012 Philipponnat Clos des Goisses Magnum at €429.17. SoDivin also listed a 2012 Philipponnat Grand Blanc Magnum at €150.00, a 2002 Dom Pérignon Brut Magnum at €700.00, and a 1999 Bollinger R.D. Extra Brut Magnum at €581.67. Older Champagne offerings included a 1996 Palmer & Co Collection Blanc de Blancs Magnum at €425.00, a 1989 De Venoge Brut Magnum at €500.00, and a 1989 Pommery Cuvée Louise Magnum at €490.00.

At the top end of the Bordeaux selection, the most expensive bottle on the list was a 1990 Château Lafite Rothschild Magnum from Pauillac at €2,375.00, with one bottle available. Other standout older wines included a 1986 Château Cheval Blanc Magnum at €1,400.00, a 1985 Château Angelus Magnum at €815.00, and a 1973 Château Lafite Rothschild Magnum at €1,000.00. The offer also included a 1982 Château Sociando-Mallet Magnum at €375.00, a 1975 Château Haut-Bailly Magnum at €220.83, a 1969 Château La Louvière Magnum at €250.00, a 1967 Château Lartigue Magnum at €229.17, and a 1962 Bel Orme Tronquoy de Lalande Magnum at €375.00.

Quantities on most lines were low, often between one and six bottles, indicating a tightly held inventory of older large formats. Some references appeared in only a single bottle, including the 1990 Château Lafite Rothschild, the 1986 Château Cheval Blanc, the 2002 Dom Pérignon, and the 2017 Domaine Anne Gros Echezeaux. A few wines had slightly deeper availability, such as the six magnums of 2015 Philipponnat Cuvée "1522" and the six magnums of 2011 Clos des Papes.

The company said bottles are “precisely described and illustrated” through high-quality photos and that transport is handled with specialized protective packaging. The email also directed buyers to a downloadable Excel stock list and a broader online magnum catalog.

SoDivin identifies itself as a specialist in fine wines and old vintages since 2001. The company is based at 21 chemin des Horts in Aigues-Vives, France, and said the current magnum offer is available through direct contact with its sales team by email, phone or WhatsApp.
