French fine wine merchant SoDivin said Tuesday that it has added a new group of bottles to its October inventory, expanding its stock with wines and spirits that span nearly a century, from a 1929 Château d'Yquem to 2023 releases from Alsace and southern France.

The company, based in Aigues-Vives in southern France, described the offer as its “best rated new arrivals” and said the selection covers vintages from 1929 through 2023. The stocklist shows prices before VAT, in euros, and states that the bottles are offered ex cellar. SoDivin also said photos of every bottle are available online or on request and that it offers same-day shipping before 2 p.m. with express delivery.

The new arrivals are heavily weighted toward French regions that draw strong demand from collectors, including Bordeaux, Burgundy, the Rhône Valley, Champagne, Alsace, the Languedoc-Roussillon and the Loire Valley. The list also includes a Brunello di Montalcino from Tuscany and old Armagnac bottlings.

At the top end of the release, the most expensive bottle in the stocklist is a 2003 Domaine de la Romanée-Conti Richebourg, listed at €3,875.00 with a single bottle available. Another notable top lot is a 1929 Château d'Yquem from Sauternes, priced at €3,187.50 for one bottle. The stocklist also includes a 2017 Domaine Georges Roumier Chambolle-Musigny at €1,495.83, a 1988 Jean-Louis Chave Hermitage Rouge Magnum at €1,490.00 and a 1986 Château Cheval Blanc Magnum at €1,400.00.

Bordeaux is one of the strongest categories in the October release. SoDivin listed 1982 Château Mouton Rothschild from Pauillac at €1,525.00 with 11 bottles available, 2000 Château Latour at €900.00 for one bottle, 2010 Château La Mission Haut-Brion Blanc at €829.17 with seven bottles and 2008 Château Ausone at €550.00 with six bottles. Other Bordeaux highlights include 1989 Château Cheval Blanc at €650.00, 1986 Château Haut-Brion at €525.00, 1986 Château Lafite Rothschild at €1,100.00, 1996 Château Léoville Poyferré at €165.00, 1995 Château Ducru-Beaucaillou at €187.50 and 2005 Château Grand-Puy-Lacoste at €110.00. Sweet wines also feature in the release, with 2007 Château Yquem listed at €350.00, 1986 Château Climens at €150.00 and 1989 Château Doisy-Védrines at €65.00.

The Rhône Valley has a large presence across both red and white wines. Several 2021 bottlings from M. Chapoutier appear near the front of the release, including L’Ermite Blanc at €470.00, L’Ermite Blanc Magnum at €956.67, L’Ermite Rouge at €300.00, Le Pavillon at €210.00, Le Méal at €190.00 and De l’Orée Blanc at €220.00. Older Rhône entries include 2011 Le Pavillon at €350.00, 2005 Le Méal Blanc at €225.00, 2004 De l’Orée Blanc at €187.50 and 2000 Le Pavillon at €245.83.

Other northern Rhône wines include several Guigal Côte-Rôtie bottlings. The company listed 2017 La Landonne at €262.50, 2017 La Mouline at €270.83, 2017 La Turque at €270.83, 2013 La Mouline at €245.83 and 1995 La Turque at €416.67. A 2019 Delas La Landonne Magnum is listed at €281.67, while a 1999 Rostaing Côte Blonde appears at €575.00. Hermitage remains another major focus, with a 2006 Jean-Louis Chave Magnum at €815.00, a 1999 Jean Louis Chave Rouge at €550.00, a 1989 Paul Jaboulet Aîné La Chapelle at €416.67 and a demi-bottle of the same wine at €208.33. SoDivin also listed a 2001 Guigal Ermitage Ex Voto Blanc at €175.00.

Southern Rhône wines are also well represented. The release includes 2020 Domaine de la Janasse Vieilles Vignes Châteauneuf-du-Pape at €75.00, 2007 Domaine de la Janasse Cuvée XXL at €475.00 and 2007 Vieilles Vignes from the same estate at €165.00. From other producers, SoDivin added a 2016 Domaine La Barroche Pure at €162.50, a 2004 Chapoutier Barbe Rac at €83.33 and a 1990 Château de Beaucastel at €220.00.

In Burgundy, the offer ranges from village wines to some of the region’s most sought-after names. In addition to the 2003 Richebourg, the list includes 2015 Armand Rousseau Clos de la Roche at €750.00, 2015 Trapet Père et Fils Chapelle-Chambertin at €358.33 and 2015 Domaine Méo-Camuzet Les Perrières Corton at €279.17. The 2017 Georges Roumier Chambolle-Musigny is one of the rarest entries, with only one bottle listed.

Alsace and the south of France account for a large share of the younger additions. A 2023 Domaine Marcel Deiss Rotenberg La Colline Rouge from Alsace is listed at €32.50 with 10 bottles available. The company also listed a 2015 Domaine Marcel Deiss Mambourg at €95.83. From Roussillon and neighboring areas, SoDivin added several vintages of Domaine Gauby’s Muntada, including 2021, 2020, 2019, 2018, 2016, 2015, 2014, 2013, 2012, 2009 and 2008, with prices ranging from €70.83 to €100.00 depending on the vintage. Gauby Vieilles Vignes from IGP Côtes Catalanes appears in 2022 at €30.00 and in 2020 at €33.33. Other southern French wines in the release include 2016 Domaine du Clos des Fées at €65.00, 2016 Domaine Alain Chabanon L’Esprit de Font Caude at €35.00 and 2010 Mas Jullien Terrasses du Larzac at €65.00.

Champagne appears in both recent and mature vintages. SoDivin listed 2020 Philipponnat Blanc de Blancs at €65.00 and a 1969 Henriot Réserve Baron Philippe de Rothschild at €550.00. The Loire is represented by two vintages of Clos Rougeard Les Poyeux, a 2014 bottle at €280.00 and a 2004 bottle at €320.83, along with a 1999 Nicolas Joly Clos de la Coulée de Serrant at €170.83.

The release also includes a small number of Italian wines and spirits. A 2015 La Rasina Brunello di Montalcino is listed at €70.83 with nine bottles available. In spirits, SoDivin added a 1965 Gelas Bas Armagnac at €575.00 and a 1939 De Castelfort Bas Armagnac at €645.83.

Quantities vary widely across the stocklist. Some wines are available in double-digit lots, including 21 bottles of 2021 Domaine Gauby Muntada, 17 bottles of 2022 Gauby Vieilles Vignes and 15 bottles of 1986 Château Climens. Many of the older and more expensive bottles are single-bottle offerings, including the 2003 Domaine de la Romanée-Conti Richebourg, the 1929 Château d'Yquem, the 2000 Château Latour, the 2015 Pierre Gonon Saint-Joseph and the 2019 Vernay Georges Coteau de Vernon Condrieu.

SoDivin said the bottles are illustrated with high-definition photos and described the company as a specialist in fine wines and old vintages since 2001. The October release was distributed to clients by email and directs buyers to the company’s online stocklist and customer service channels by email and WhatsApp.
