A French wine merchant said Tuesday that it has a broad selection of Château Lafite Rothschild and Carruades de Lafite bottles from 1937 through 2010, underscoring continued demand for one of Bordeaux’s most closely watched names in the secondary market.

SoDivin, a retailer based in Aigues-Vives, France, said the bottles are in stock and available for express shipping, with specialized packaging and photographs available on request. The company said the inventory includes both standard bottles and magnums, with prices listed before value-added tax and at cellar departure.

Among the wines offered were recent vintages such as 2010 Carruades de Lafite at €235 and 2009 Carruades de Lafite at €345.83, as well as older bottles including 1990 Château Lafite Rothschild at €675, 1986 Château Lafite Rothschild at €770.83 and a 1937 Château Lafite Rothschild at €1,849.17. The list also included a 1954 Château Lafite Rothschild magnum priced at €2,995.83 and a 1973 Château Lafite Rothschild magnum at €1,000.

The merchant said same-day shipping is available for orders placed before 2 p.m., with next-day delivery offered to some destinations. It also said it uses specialized packaging designed to protect bottles in transit.

Château Lafite Rothschild, one of the first growth estates in Pauillac, has long been among the most traded and collected wines in the world. Its prices on the secondary market often reflect not only vintage quality but also provenance, storage conditions and bottle format.

SoDivin said it has operated since 2001 as a specialist in fine wines and old vintages and invited buyers to request high-definition photos or contact the company by email or WhatsApp for more information.
